Hon. Secretary's Message

Dear Members,

Greeting to you all.

First of all, I would like to heartfully thank each one of you for your overwhelming support and for reposing such confidence in me. It gives me great motivation to work with commitment and responsibility for the further advancement of the club.

With a visionary president who is also passionate and a very enthusiastic and promising committee beside me, I look forward to fulfilling the promises we made by delivering an honest and transparent administration this year

Furthermore, the past few years have been challenging for everyone, and we all have been suffering in ways unimaginable. But I believe we can overcome the ongoing and any emerging challenges with our strong resilience and efforts just like before.

Despite the unprecedented times, I believe that our managing committee will be dedicated to the improvement of the club amenities and in solving the member's grievances to the best of their ability and ultimately to delivering a safe, fun-filled and entertaining year to our members.

Most importantly, we have set some realistic objectives lined up for the further progression of the club and its functioning. We are working towards reducing the running costs of the kitchen and wherever possible for the benefit of the members. Rationalization of the administration and accountability are a other significant factors on my agenda.

As affirmed, I guarantee that I will work diligently to live up to the expectations of everyone while maintaining the dignity and decorum of the club. I also would like to assure you that I will be available on the club premises and dedicate my best hours.

I seek your valuable support and suggestions for the successful execution of our plans and the smooth functioning of the club. Wishing you all a very happy festive season ahead.

Best Regards,

V.K. Visweswara Rao. ( Visu Valluri )

GENERAL SERVICES:

Undoubtedly, the responsibility of general services is not just a rough sail on the high seas, but a vast ocean of possibilities and choices.

I am glad and thankful that the President has accepted my choice. It is challenging. Yet, I have the grit, energy and time to fulfill the obligations, as General Services a wide angled bioscope. It extends from the minutest of detail to the monumental structures of the Club. Some renovated, some standing tall in grace, we have magnificent Mahals and buildings which stand stall to represent Waltair club to us. I will strive to maintain and preserve them with the same glory that they signify.

The green revolution of the club is phenomenal, especially after the HUDHUD devastation. We were able to restore the green environs in no time.

I will definitely try further improve the green cover, to cover up small patches in a beautiful way ensuring everything is right in its place and function.

Few days after I assumed my assignment, I was playing, hide and seek, all over our woods. Some club members wondered what I was up to! Once the little work was done, (an amazing work of pruning the Trees, thanks to our gardeners), it totally transformed the look of our Club. Brilliant illumination showcasing the beauty of our tall trees and little shrubs with colourful flowers, enhanced the total facade.

Not an end at all, we have time and scope to do much more, to create an ambience which is comforting, soothing and relaxing.

The structures and roads, will also be attended to, in the standards of the grace and splendour of our club.

I hope to achieve a lot more in the interest and the development of the club with the support of my Team.

Truly Yours.

CHAIRMAN, LIBRARY & CHAMBERS COMMITTEE:

THE CHAMBERS:

Usage of Chambers by members has been disrupted this past year due to Covid and average occupancy has decreased compared to previous years. As the situation is improving more members are using the facility for their stays and to perform marriages and functions of family members in the Club. To this end, we will look into all areas of the facilities to improve to provide better services for members. We will put procedures in place to complete any pending works and improve maintenance wherever necessary as well as improve food and beverage service for the members. Our goal will be to keep our members satisfied with their stay in Chambers.

LIBRARY:

Efforts will be made to make any necessary changes to improve the facilities to attract wider usage by members and member children. This could include keeping current with ordering magazines and books of interest to the members, any changes required in infrastructure or operation timings to make the facility more comfortable to members. Programs for children to draw them to spend time in the library will be reviewed.

BAR COMMITTEE

Thanking you all members for the trust placed in this Committee. The first major hurdle for this Committee to ensure that our Club gets our regular Liquor License. We have already started putting in efforts towards the same. Meanwhile, we will still continue to provide the services in our Main Building and during all our Entertainment events. We request the cooperation and understanding of all members to abide by the rules and not to violate them under any circumstances.

Our aim is to provide the Liquor facility at all venues in the club, and to revive the services at par if not better to the pre Covid days. We together will work towards providing a happy club environment to ensure that we live up to the phrase 'home away from home'.

In a Holiday Spirit

Hear the words "Joy, Gifts, Lights, Decorations, Holidays and Santa Claus" - what else comes to mind if not CHRISTMAS.

It is that time of the year when the Christian families get together to celebrate and honour the birth of Jesus Christ, Son of God. Did you know that December 25th was appointed by the Church Officials in Rome? It was during the reign of emperor Constantine in the 3rd century that it was decided as the birthdate of Jesus. The date itself and several of the customs and traditions everyone has come to associate with Christmas actually evolved from pagan traditions celebrating the Winter Solstice.

Centuries ago, in the beginning, Christmas was celebrated exclusively at public gatherings but in the early years of 19th century, people began to revel and rejoice on their own with family and close friends. Now, Christians celebrate the festival by attending the Midnight Mass, holding Church services, singing carols, decorating their homes, putting up a Christmas Tree with ornaments aplenty, having parties, visiting friends and family and exchanging gifts. Christmas festivity is always a wonderful joyous time that brings everyone together and keeps families connected in a special way.

Christmas Trivia

- Santa has more than 30 different festive names, one of them being Sinterklaas in Dutch.
- Tradition of putting up Christmas trees is more than 500 years old. Germans are credited with starting it.
- The Christmas wreath is a symbol of love and eternal life
- Thomas Edison and his business partner Edward Johnson invented the Christmas lights.
- Tradition of singing carols is based on the English custom ofwassailing that means to toast to someone's good health and fortune.
- The yule log calls back to a holiday tradition from the Iron Age.
- Each of the Christmas tree ornaments has a special meaning; example - a bird ornament reflects happiness and joy, an angel ornament asks for God's guidance, a fruit basket is for generosity and plenty to eat and so on and so forth.
- Tradition of hanging stockings on Christmas eve comes from a legend about Saint Nicholas who put gold coins in the stockings of three poor sisters. Children now hang them up hoping to find them filled with gifts in the morning.
- 'Silent Night' is the most recorded Christmas song in History. It has more than 700+ versions.
- Tinsel or the long strings of shiny coloured paper was originally spun from silver; now it is just plastic or filmed paper.
- The largest Christmas present in the world is the ' Statue of Liberty ' given by France to the USA in 1886.
- Originally composed as a Thanksgiving tune, 'Jingle Bells' was the first song played in space.

A Rusty Vignette

Back in the eighteenth century, Soldierpet was a residential colony for the British army. Old Town went on to become home to the Anglo-Indian community in Vizag and, even to this day, resembles the backyards of Great Britain.

And then, when the French missionaries landed on these shores around the middle of the nineteenth century, they too left their indelible mark on the area-schools with a cosmopolitan je ne sais quoi (St Aloysius, St John's, Queen Mary's, etc.) sprang up, along with magnificent churches. (St John's Church was designed by no less a personage than the legendary Sir Arthur Cotton, the civil engineer who designed the Godavari barrage.)

The locale attracted a variety of communities and became a lively mix of Anglo-Indians, French missionaries, Bengali wage workers and fisherfolk, not to forget the fiery, moneylending Kabuliwalas (the Shylocks of One Town).

The neighbourhood still has listed heritage buildings like the Town Hall and the Freemasons' Hall that lend a certain grandeur to the area. In addition, Soldierpet includes the fishing harbour, a bus depot, cinemas, a reading room and various government offices-most of them ramshackle and run down now, their peeling paintwork perennially smothered with the red dust belched by the overhead iron-ore belt, lending a surreal, roseate glow over the whole area.

Every Sunday, like clockwork, we motored through the winding lanes of Old Town to church. This locality is etched into my memory with the magic of fairy lights, the singing of the choirs and the fishy fragrances of the incoming tides.

Our Sundays invariably held a festive air of breathless and joyful anticipation. We were always getting ready for some celebration or other-Easter, Thanksgiving, Annual Fête, Christmas, New Year. The run up to each of these was just as exhilarating and exciting as the very day of the festival.

The Annual Fête

Held in the churchyard of St John's Church, the annual fête held the ambience of a rustic, village market with its food stalls, games kiosks, the resplendent merry-go-rounds and a carnival wheel.

Several weeks in advance, the parishioners would be flung into a flurry of activity, making posters and banners, arranging for a mind-boggling array of delicious food and putting up stalls. The younger lot was herded into the parsonage and set to making strings of bunting to ensure that they-the kids not the bunting-weren't accidentally trampled underfoot.

We've even had music with a live band at times and people could request a song ... for a song (lol!)-like the jukeboxes of yore.

Choir

Being corralled into the choir was an adventure in itself.

Treacherous parents, only too happy to get us out of their hair, colluded with the organist and the padre, and before long, a hapless bunch of us found ourselves doing the interminable and incessant scales:

-LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA LA-

darkly muttering about the unfairness of it all as we watched the blessed ones, those sly creatures who had managed to evade the choir master's long arm, blithely wave goodbye to those of us who had to stay behind for choir practice.

The bonds built by commiseration among the choristers, not unlike the bonds between the inmates of Guantanamo Bay, have withstood the passage of time.

We were segregated into the four parts of the harmony: soprano, alto, tenor and bass. This 'segregation' was done by mysterious and mystical forces beyond our comprehension, with the soprano in the front row, the bass right at the back and the rest of us heaped willy-nilly in the middle as alto and tenor.

The trick was to maintain a low profile to elude the wrath of the powers-that-were-the choir master and the organist. The aunties and uncles who had also been roped in into the choir were our guardian angels, as it were and, as youngsters, we gratefully slipped beneath the shielding mantle of their powerful and mellifluous voices.

'CRESCENDO!' the choir conductor would bellow, his face like an apoplectic thundercloud. In abject terror we would emit a series of sad squeaks.

Carols

Carol rounds was a week-long nocturnal picnic, rattling about in the old, yellow, parish-school bus in the tortuous alleyways of Vizag, all of which looked incredibly magical and mysterious in the moonlight, starlight and the inadequate streetlights of the not-so-cold winter nights in Vizag.

In the dead of night, we visited the homes of pyjama-clad parishioners who looked so very different from the immaculate folk who congregated for mass on Sundays. Our hosts, notwithstanding their nightclothes, would join in with our joyful rendition of the Christmas carols.

We met with the sleepy dogs, cats, parakeets and other miscellaneous furred, feathered and even scaled (eeugh!) housemates. There were cakes and goodies for the carollers at every home and we gorged ourselves like we were starving slum-dog millionaires.

Dawn would inconsiderately sneak up over the horizon as we toured around the last few homes for the night, nevertheless we sang with undiminished gusto, 'Silent night, Holy night, All is calm . . .'

The following night we set off again in the big bus, its sorely deficient suspension doing its darndest to rearrange our vertebral discs. We would be hoarse hunchbacks of Notre Dame by the end of that week.

And Hallelujah! there we were, warbling for all we were worth, during the yuletide run up to Christmas, ringing in the New Year and exultantly hailing Easter morn, not to mention celebrating all the weddings and baptisms that came in between, having practised all year long. Oh, glorious days!

Covid-19 has put paid to much of this activity, and I do miss the crimson-tinted, iron-ore aura of Soldierpet.
